Move your Existing Business to Canada

To state that Canada is business friendly for small to medium enterprises would be a major understatement. Canada has been ranked first among 32 countries in the American region for its economic freedom, and its economy is the 10th largest in the world. Some of the reasons why entrepreneurs from all over the world flock to Canada to take advantage of business opportunities, includes lower costs of expansion than compared to the USA, lower corporate taxes, access to the US and Mexican Markets through the new NAFTA, access to the European and Chinese markets through trade deals, friendly immigration policies, highly skilled workforce, and ease of doing business.

Canada's ever-expanding economy welcomes worldwide business owners. While the process of relocating your business to Canada is not simple, we can assist you in deciphering the complexity and emphasizing the advantages of relocating your business to Canada. By moving your business to Canada, you will benefit from various economic advantages through government incentives, as well as laws and regulations that boost business initiatives.

Some of the steps involved in moving your business may include:

Eligibility assessment to expand a business under the Intra-Company transferee (ICT) Program. Establishing your company in Canada would require thorough research and placing the right people in the right position to execute the business plan. In most programs, obtaining work permit is a requirement to establish a business in Canada. Using this work permit, the applicant/business owner will actively run the business and ultimately apply for permanent residency.

In this regard, Nihang Law is here to help you make the right decisions while moving your business to Canada. Nihang Law can assist you with drafting a thorough and well researched business plan, and also assist you in assessing the local markets in Canada.

You can book a consultation with our immigration team to discuss the steps to consider if moving your business to Canada is the right step for you.

Buy a business in Canada

In 2021, Canada had estimated an annual gross domestic product (GDP) of 2.027 trillion USD and is among the top ten largest economies in the world. A highly globalized economy, Canadian companies can effortlessly trade in the markets of the United States of America, United Kingdom, European Union and China. This is why investors and businessmen from all over the globe decide to start or buy business in Canada.

Purchase of an existing business in Canada can also help the investors or business owners become eligible for the Entrepreneur Work Permit Program if you wish to relocate to Canada as a foreign investor or entrepreneur. This path can also lead to Permanent Residency and Citizenship in Canada.

Finding a potentially profitable business with room for growth for your immigration journey can be a difficult task. You must choose a business that is in line with your talents, prior experience, and financial objectives. Furthermore, the business you want to acquire must meet the Canadian immigration authorities' requirements.

Canadian immigration authorities also want to know how the purchase of a business in Canada can be a significant benefit to the Canadian economy. To satisfy the significant benefit element, one can buy a business that is in the main economic industries or sectors; that is already engaged in significant benefit activities, or invest in a business that will likely create job opportunities for Canadians.

Extensive local and industry-related research is also required to select the right business. Connections with the local community will greatly increase the likelihood that your future business plans will satisfy the requirements of the Canadian immigration authorities. Furthermore, a well researched business plan is also required to satisfy the local authorities that your business will be beneficial and successful in the Canadian market.

Nihang Law is here to help you through the process. You can contact us for a detailed discussion on the types of businesses that the immigration authorities may approve or disapprove. Our professionals such as lawyers and business consultants would be able to guide you through this journey. To learn more, get in touch with our team.

Obtain Citizenship as a Business Owner

Canada is an excellent location for doing business. According to the World Bank's ease of doing business ranking, Canada is rated 23rd. Canada boasts a well-educated workforce and one of the world's lowest business tax rates.

Business owners, entrepreneurs, and investors want to become Canadian citizens for these (and many other) reasons. There are no "golden visas," "citizenship by investment," or other comparable passive investment programmes in Canada that allow you to get Canadian citizenship in exchange for a financial investment. However, by investing in Canadian enterprises, business owners, entrepreneurs, and investors can still obtain Canadian citizenship.

Businessmen, investors, and entrepreneurs can become permanent residents of Canada through one of three general immigration methods. This includes the executive express entry, provincial nominee programs, and a start-up company.

It is a misconception shared by many business owners that express entry is the only way for them to immigrate to Canada. However, this stream is limited to young professionals because of the points given according to age.

However, where a foreign investor invests in Canadian business, they create the opportunity for themselves to obtain a work permit, followed by permanent residency. And after being a permanent resident of Canada for the required period, they will be eligible to become citizens.

Business immigration is available through different provincial nominee programs. To understand about these different streams, you can make an appointment with our team.

Come to Canada as a Self-Employed Professional

The Federal Self-Employed Persons Program could help international professional athletes, or individuals working in the arts and culture industry who can prove that they can make a critical commitment to the social or athletic life of Canada.

This program permits athletes, musicians, artists, etc. to come to Canada as permanent residents.

The reason behind the self-employed stream is to pull in gifted, self-employed people to contribute to Canadian social or athletic life and enhance the Canadian culture and athletics.

This program isn't difficult if one meets the eligibility factors. There are several professions that you can choose from to qualify as a self-employed person. However, to achieve that, it must be demonstrated that you intend to work as a self-employed individual in Canada and have at least 2 years of experience in your selected profession.

Points are allocated for personal categories such as work experience, age, education, official languages, and adaptability.

If you think you'll be able to fulfill the requirements or have any further questions, then get in touch with us. Our experienced staff will be delighted to assist you.

Work Permits for Executives/ Senior Management

Work permits for executives can be obtained for different programs such as Intra-Company Transfer, and entrepreneur immigration streams.

When you have Canada's work permit, you are authorized to work anywhere in the country. This will allow you to take your business idea or expertise to a dynamic and developed economy.

Nihang Law is here to find the solution for your immigration vision. Our dedicated and experienced team will advise and guide you throughout the process to ensure the desired outcome.

Express Entry

Provincial Nominee Programs

Express entry is the most well known and one of the fastest routes for Canadian Permanent Residency, as most applications are processed within six months. The Express Entry Program is a point-based immigration program for professionals who want to settle in Canada. Depending on your points, if you have a competitive score, you will be issued an Invitation to Apply (ITA) for Permanent Residency in Canada.

The requirements are based upon skilled work experience, language ability, age and education. Securing a valid job offer and proficiency in both English and French can drastically increase ones chances of obtaining an ITA.

Additionally, you might have to show that you have enough funds to settle down in Canada with your family depending on the family size accompanying you to Canada. Lastly, there must be no criminal record or cause of inadmissibility that will prevent the you from being permissible to enter Canada.

If you apply under the express entry program, you can choose to live in any province of Canada, except Quebec. There is a different stream for those who are willing to settle in Quebec.

To find out about what documents are needed and how to complete your Express Entry profile, get in touch with us today! We will manage the entire process for you, while you can relax and plan how to adjust yourself in Canada.

If a Canadian province or territory nominates you to settle down in that location, then you will be eligible to immigrate to Canada as a Permanent Resident. To qualify for a nomination, you must have the skills, education, and work experience needed to settle in Canada and support yourself and your family.

The province or territory will assess whether you meet the economic or labour market needs in that location, and in Canada. If you meet all the requirements, you will be issued an Invitation to Apply (ITA). Using the ITA, you can apply for permanent residency, and once the application is approved, you can come to Canada as a Permanent Resident.

It is therefore a great way to immigrate to Canada if you meet the requirements. You can either apply through the Express Entry PNP stream or the non-Express Entry PNP stream.

Every province has their own conditions on giving out a Provincial Nominee Certificate. To find out about these conditions and requirements, get in touch with us. You can discuss your objectives with us, and we can assist in redirecting you to the right position.

Labour Market Impact Assessment

Atlantic Immigration Pilot Project (AIPP)

Do you wish to hire an international candidate to employ for a position for which you are unable to find any local talent? Canadian Immigration authorities understand that sometimes it is difficult for employers to find local talent. Therefore, international candidates must be engaged to best satisfy the requirements of Canadian employers. In this regard, an employer will first obtain an LMIA, with certain exceptions, before an international candidate can start working for them.

The LMIA is a document that an employer in Canada may need to obtain from Employment and Social Development Canada before hiring a foreign worker. This will confirm that the foreign worker is not affecting the employability of Canadian workers or permanent residents. Therefore, when an LMIA is obtained by the employer, the foreign worker can apply for a work permit.

There might be additional steps in the process of obtaining the LMIA depending on your circumstances and the industry in which the job is being offered. Our experienced team will be able to guide and advise you with the best solution for your LMIA needs. Therefore, do not delay in reaching out to us! we are here to assure you that your Canadian dreams are only one step away.

The provinces of New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Labrador, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island are the four provinces which form Atlantic Canada, so they are known as the Atlantic Provinces. With beautiful beaches, enormous icebergs, red soil, and gorgeous mountains, Atlantic Canada has everything for the nature enthusiasts. Atlantic Canada also has deep historical roots for both the indigenous population and Canadians in general. While the population in Atlantic Canada is low, many industries are housed herein. Canada's enormous fisheries and maritime industry has been making billions of dollars in profit, while relying heavily on sustainable and environmentally friendly fish farming. Furthermore, Fabricated metal product manufacturing, Plastics and rubber products manufacturing and Transportation equipment manufacturing compose most of the jobs in the Atlantic Provinces.

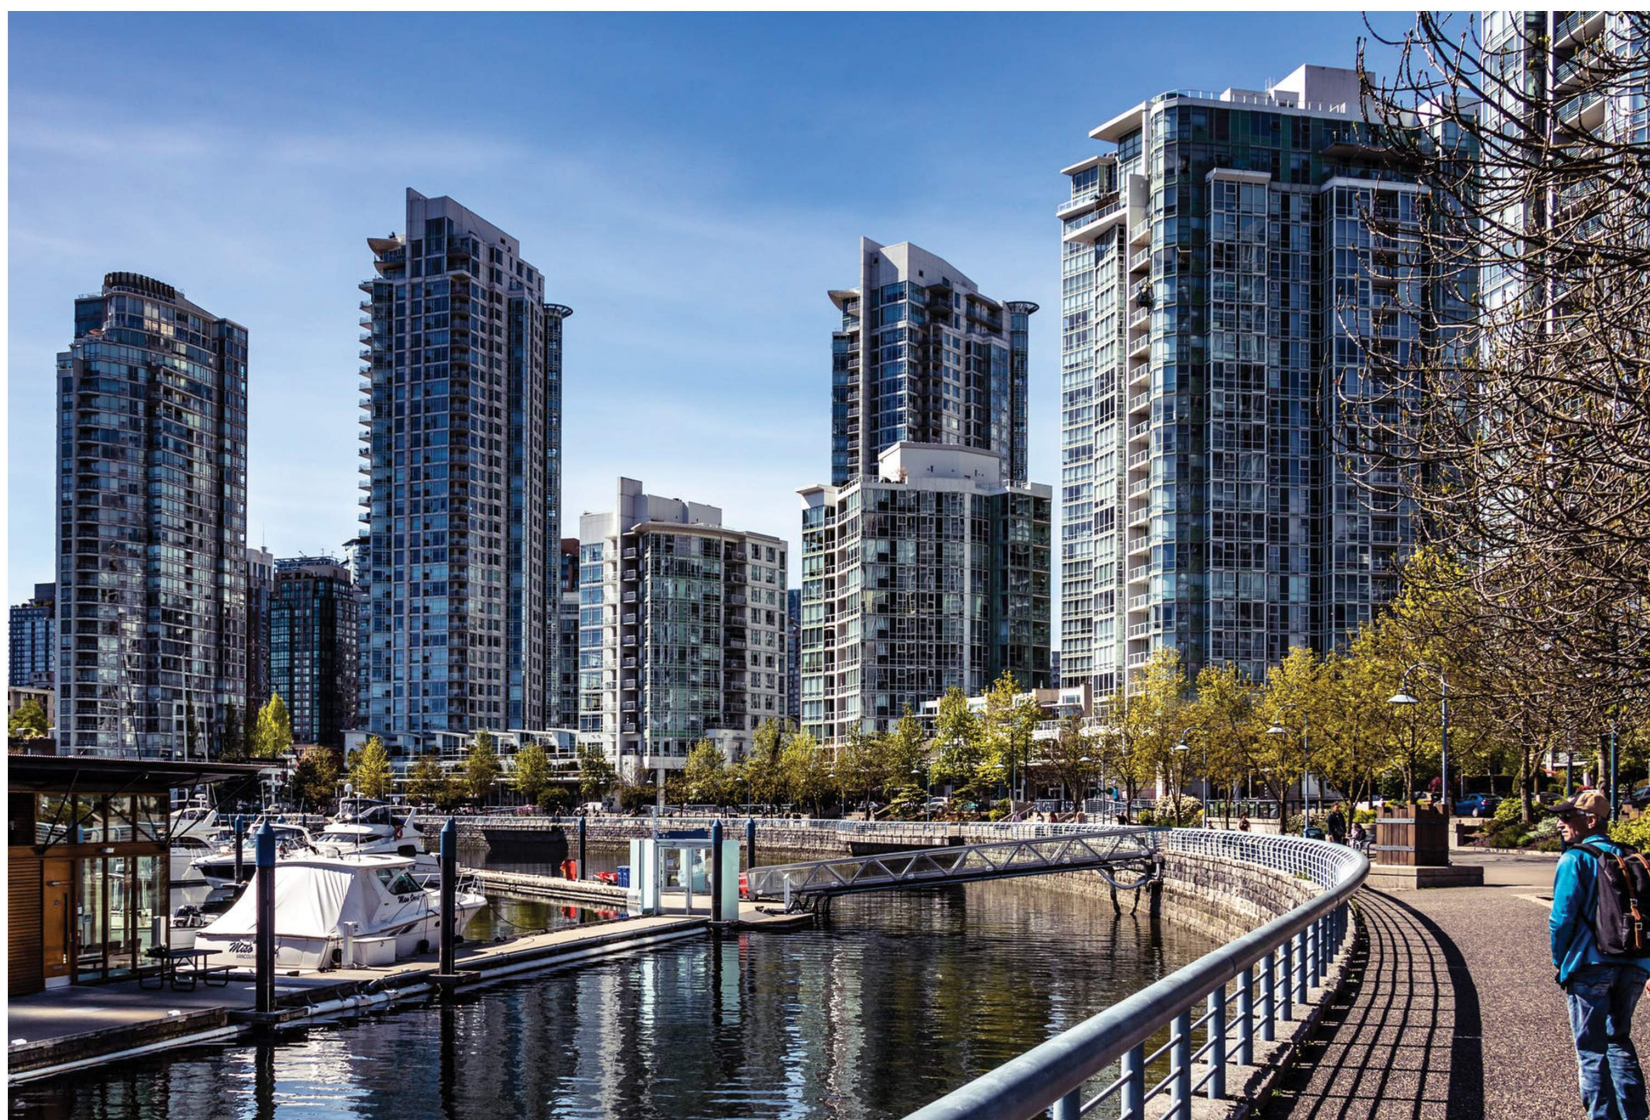

While growing their share in the international markets, such as the USA and the European Union, the Atlantic Provinces have increased their immigration quotas, and more jobs are being created in local industries. The Atlantic Immigration Pilot Project is a program designed to help employers in Atlantic Canada to hire foreign skilled workers who are willing to immigrate to Atlantic Canada and international graduates who wish to stay in Atlantic Canada after they graduate.

Currently, there are three programs under which one can apply. These include the Atlantic International Graduate Program, Atlantic High-skilled Program, and Atlantic Intermediate-skilled Program.

Both the employer and the applicant must meet certain requirements necessary by these programs. Once these requirements are met then the foreign worker can get permanent residency status in Canada.

The organization that is making the job offer must be in good standing and have been operating in the Atlantic region for at least two years, they also must work collaboratively with settlement service providers who can help the foreign national to settle in Canada.

If you want to choose the right program, and utilize this great opportunity, then get in touch with us. We will assist you throughout the process and make sure that you are accurate in each step and get positive results. We have worked in collaboration with employers and applicants in the past and we know that it can be a lengthy and time-consuming process. However, we will ensure that you get the best results in the end.

Canada Visit Visa/ Temporary Resident Permit

Canada is consistently hailed as one of the world's most liveable countries, thanks to its clean, safe, and friendly cities. Whether you like river rafting or live theatre, Canada does not disappoint. Canadian cities tend to have very small populations, and most people tend to be friendly and helpful to strangers, even in large cities. Crime rate is relatively low, and Canadians tend to be friendly to strangers.

Canada is known as a "northern" destination, but it has a much wider appeal than igloos and snow-caps. Its climate is richly varied, allowing for a wide range of activities throughout the year due to its enormous size. Each year over 20 million visitors visit Canada to meet family or for tourism purposes.

To find out what is required for your situation, contact us, and we will find the right information out for you.

Visitors to Canada can be categorized in different occupations such as for students, workers, family members of Canadian citizens, and entrepreneurs who wish to conduct business in Canada.

If you want to apply for a visitor visa, you need to be precise and fulfil all the requirements in the application. You must also convince the immigration officer that you will leave Canada at the end of your stay. This means it can be a lengthy and complicated process, but we are here to help you resolve all these issues.

Whether you want to visit Canada as a tourist or you want to visit Canada to see a family member or for business purposes, we are here for you.

Super Visa

A super visa is eligible for parents or grandparents of a Canadian Citizen or permanent resident to visit their children or grandchildren for up to 2 years at a time. While this is similar to visit visa, the process and satisfaction criteria are different. It is a multi-entry visa that provides multiple entries for a period up to 10 years. This visa is a good alternative for parents' sponsorship which can take longer to be processed and completed.

To be eligible for a supervisa, the main requirements are that you must be either a parent or grandparent of a Canadian citizen or permanent resident of Canada and have a signed letter of invitation and support from your child or grandchild.

The visa application process requires accurate documentation and integrity of purpose. This means that the applicant must be a genuine visitor to Canada, and will leave by choice at the end of the visit.

To understand if you are eligible or not, contact us today! We will assist you continuously from the beginning to the end and make sure you have all the necessary documentation to support your application.

Family Sponsorship for Parents and Grandparents

If you are a Citizen or permanent resident of Canada, and you meet all the requirements, then you can sponsor your parents and grandparents to become permanent residents of Canada. The first step of the process begins with the submission of an interest to sponsor. If you are invited to apply then you will need to submit two applications: the sponsorship application, and the permanent residence application.

If both are approved, then an agreement will need to be signed which is effective from the day your sponsored family member becomes permanent resident of Canada.

This means your family members can live, study, and work in Canada if they become permanent residents of Canada. The Canadian government believes in uniting families and prioritize this type of applications.

If you would like to find out whether you are eligible, and how to apply, then get in touch with us! It will be our pleasure to assist you in bringing your parents to Canada.

Spousal Sponsorship

Canadian citizens or permanent residents can sponsor their partner to come to Canada and reside there permanently. The Canadian government prioritizes these applications because they understand the importance of family reunification. A partner under this sponsorship can be either a spouse, common-law partner, or conjugal partner.

To get a fast decision on your sponsorship application, you need to ensure that it is right the first time. This means the documentation should be accurate and the all the requirements need to be met.

Different conditions are needed to be fulfilled from the sponsor and applicant under the different categories. But the main condition that the immigration officer will be looking for is the genuineness of the relationship. An evaluation of whether there is an actual relation between the sponsor and the sponsored applicant would be made to reach a decision. If they suspect that someone got into a relationship to enter Canada, then they will reject the application.

To make sure that your application is clear of errors and there is no ground for the immigration officer to find a weakness in your application, then get in touch with us.

We will provide you with all the necessary assistance to reunite you with your spouse in Canada.
